

● I'm not much of a golf fan, but I like this guy.

Masters champion Danny Willett popped in to see Tom Hartley this week, one of Britain's leading prestige car dealers, and dropped some of his winnings on a £220,000 Ferrari California.

And, being the top guy he is, he splashed out on a Bentley Continental Supersport for his Mrs.

I'm in the wrong graft.

Tom told me: "I'm delighted.

"As a huge golf fan I've followed his career all the way, so I was delighted to sell him this rare Ferrari.

"It is one of the most in-vogue cars of the moment.

"There's normally a waiting list of 12 months but I managed to get it for him specially."
