Half-price Footgolf

WE'RE giving you a hole lot of fun for half the cost - by offering 50 per cent off a round of Footgolf.

Taking the UK by storm, Footgolf is played on a golf course and combines the best of the world's most popular sport, football, with the elite sport of golf.

But instead of wielding a golf club you use your feet, and instead of a golf ball you use a football.

Get out in the fresh air, take to the golf course and try the UK's fastest-growing sport.

Everyone can play, and the rules and objectives are exactly the same as golf.

Book a round at one of more than 80 certified courses.

Visit ukfootgolf.com to learn more about this new and exciting sport. To get your 50 per cent off just follow the steps below.

● HONDA has become the latest manufacturer to join the turbo revolution.

The car firm's legendary VTEC engine is being replaced in the Civic range for 2017, with boosted 1-litre and 1.5-litre options.

Better performance, better MPG and lower CO2.

● THE clocks have gone back, the nights and mornings are darker... and that can spell real danger for drivers.

Luckily, Halfords has just launched a headlight bulb that shines up to 130 per cent brighter than regular bulbs.

Better still, they are on a buy-one-get-one-free deal at the moment.

● TOP Gear's former team are in more hot water in Argentina. A judge wants them investigated for "illegally" swapping the H982 FKL number plate, above. Some locals took it as a Falklands war dig.

SUPER WAYS TO MAKE MONEY

WE'VE all been there - you've got £600,000 to invest, but you don't trust shady banks. So where do you put it?

Well, if you're smart, and obviously a lot richer than me, you put it into supercars. This month, it's seven years since the recession hit, which sparked an enormous rise in demand and price of top-end motors.

Buying and selling isn't exactly my area of expertise. Maybe that is because I don't have the funds but, if I did, I would like nothing more than to spend it at a high-end dealership ("It's an investment love, honest. I read it in The Sun").

But one man who really does know his onions about buying and selling top motors is supercar tycoon Tom Hartley. This week he sold Britain's first-ever second-hand LaFerrari, pictured left, for £2.1 million.

'Prices rising at incredible speed'

'Prices rising at incredible speed' Tom explains: "In 2008, super-rich people panicked, terrified of losing everything they would work for if the banks crashed.

"They took their money out and put it into assets they could see and touch. It created an unbelievable demand for classic cars and certain supercars. At times, the prices were rising at such incredible speed that we were unable to keep up - and they just have kept on going upwards.

"There's one 1967 Ferrari 275 GTB/4 that we sold four times during those seven years. Every time it came back in our hands it cost £200,000 more.

Tom makes a splash with LaFerrari sale

CAR tycoon Tom Hartley sold Britain's first ever second-hand LaFerrari for £2.1 million. And here it is in our exclusive snap

"floating" on a lake. Only 499 of these 230mph motors were built and you had to be invited by Ferrari to buy one for £1.15m.

"It started off at £600,000 and we paid £800,000, we paid £1million, £1.2million and we paid £1.4million - the same car. It's incredible.

"A Ferrari that cost £6,000 in 1965 would set you back £600,000 in 2008. Today that car is worth £2.4million."

Here, Tom reveals some of the biggest four-wheeled, tax-free earners from the last seven years.
